

CASE MANAGEMENT BRIEF

Subject: Wesley Scott Morton | DOB: 03/29/2004 | Assessment Date: August 7, 2026

Purpose of the Case Management Brief: This staff-facing document translates raw clinical intake and diagnostic scoring into an actionable, longitudinal case plan. This brief bridges the gap between assessment data and real-world program delivery.
Note: Criminal History has been excluded as a primary criminogenic driver in this plan.

1. Risk Profile (Source: LS/CMI)

Wesley Morton exhibits an overall Medium risk level (LS/CMI Score: 19). Per user instruction, Criminal History is excluded. The primary drivers of his criminal risk are centered around socioeconomic stability and lifestyle maintenance:

Primary Need Domain	Risk Level / Score	Criminogenic Indicators & Evidence
1. School / Work (EE)	Score: 7 / 9 (High Risk)	Currently unemployed with an unstable career history (longest job 6 months). Lacks a GED or vocational certifications, leaving him structurally disconnected from stable conventional pursuits.
2. Substance Abuse (ADP)	Score: 1 / 8 (Low Risk - Current)	While his current risk is low due to 10 months of continuous sobriety, his severe historical methamphetamine addiction was the direct catalyst for his homelessness, job loss, and burglary offense. Recovery maintenance is a primary criminogenic need.
3. Leisure / Recreation (LR)	Score: 2 / 2 (High Risk)	Wesley exhibits high unstructured idle time ('doing nothing really'). A lack of organized prosocial activities leaves a lifestyle vacuum that historically facilitated substance use and delinquency.

2. Behavioral Indicators

Behavioral indicators describe how Wesley's risk factors manifest in real-world patterns. These dictate how staff should navigate daily interactions and coaching:

- 'Cut Off' Pattern (Low Frustration Tolerance): Historically, Wesley exhibits a 'Cut Off' coping strategy when facing acute stress. When he became homeless and turned to methamphetamine use, his response was to abruptly quit his pizza-delivery job and completely disengage from conventional life.
- Impulsivity ('Acting Before Thinking'): Wesley admits that he 'often acts before he thinks' and sometimes gets into trouble 'almost by accident.' This is a core problem-solving and self-management deficit.
- Remorse & Prosocial Alignment (Massive Strength): Unlike many justice-involved individuals, Wesley exhibits no procriminal cognition. He strongly accepts responsibility for his actions, expresses genuine remorse ('Yes, they were wrong. I had a choice.'), and respects authority figures (supervisors, probation officer). This high teachability is a major protective factor.

3. Pattern Over Time (Longitudinal Trajectory)

Wesley's justice system involvement began at age 18 (he has 5-8 lifetime arrests, primarily minor misdemeanors). His trajectory peaked with a conviction for Burglary, Third Degree, which led to a 3.5-month incarceration at Kirkland Reception & Evaluation Center. Notably, Wesley's trajectory includes a probation violation and revocation—his probation was violated when he committed the burglary. This indicates a clear pattern: when unstabilized in the community, his coping mechanism (methamphetamine use) leads to rapid relapse, residential instability (homelessness), and criminal offense (burglary). This is the longitudinal cycle that the Turn 90 intervention is designed to interrupt.

4. Acute / Emergency Needs

Per intake assessment and verbatim records, no active acute or emergency crises (such as safety threats, active drug use, psychiatric crises, or immediate housing displacement) exist. Wesley has achieved 10 months of continuous methamphetamine sobriety, is physically stable, and has temporary shelter at the federal halfway house.

5. Structural Stability Factors

These structural and socioeconomic factors are not necessarily criminogenic, but they represent significant obstacles to successful reintegration that staff must systematically address:

Stability Barrier	Current Status	Clinical Context & Staff Directions
Housing Stability	Transitional / Temporary	Currently residing in a federal halfway house and participating in the 8-week Turn 90 program. Long-term, traditional housing is a key future need.
Driver's License Status	No License in Good Standing	Does not have a driver's license. Lacks immediate independent mobility but possesses state ID, birth certificate, and social security card.
Educational Credentials	Grade 10 Completed	Lacks a High School Diploma or GED. Lacks formal academic credentials, though he is highly articulate and motivated.
Recent Substance Use	10 Months Sobriety (Meth)	Sober and clean, but in the critical early recovery phase. Requires regular support, accountability, and avoidance of active drug associates.

6. Legal & Placement Constraints

Wesley is currently residing in a federal halfway house and is under active federal community supervision (probation). He has mandatory probation visits and halfway house check-ins that restrict his schedule. He relies on public transportation to travel to and from Turn 90 daily. He has no outstanding charges, no pending cases, and no sex offender registry requirements. Placement decisions must accommodate his public transit reliance and supervision schedule.

7. Responsivity & Engagement Profile

Responsivity dictates how staff should communicate and tailor coaching to match Wesley's unique psychological and cognitive profile:

- High Motivation & Receptivity: Wesley has an exceptionally positive, cooperative attitude. He wants to lead a life without crime, appreciates Turn 90, and is highly receptive to learning. Avoid confrontational coaching styles; use positive reinforcement and goal-tracking.
- Hands-on, Practical Learning Style: Wesley is interested in concrete vocational certifications (forklift manager, HVAC technician). He excels in practical, applied settings. Training should focus on hands-on task execution rather than dense, theoretical classroom instruction.
- Father's Absence/Incarceration Sensitivity: His father has been in prison for four years (in-and-out of his life since birth) and has a criminal record. Reentry staff should recognize this lack of paternal role modeling and provide strong, prosocial, male mentorship and conventional guidance.
