1. General Rating Principles & The 3-to-0 Rating Guide

The 3-to-0 Rating Scale

Certain items require an evaluative rating from 3 to 0 and should be scored according to the following standard criteria:

Score	Level	Operational Definition	Assessment Benchmark
3	Satisfactory	A satisfactory situation with no need for improvement.	Active prosocial functioning; no risk indicators present.
2	Relatively Satisfactory	A relatively satisfactory situation, with some room for improvement.	Generally stable, minor areas for personal growth.
1	Relatively Unsatisfactory	A relatively unsatisfactory situation with a need for improvement.	Documented strain, inconsistency, or moderate risk factor.

Score	Level	Operational Definition	Assessment Benchmark
0	Very Unsatisfactory	A very unsatisfactory situation with a clear, strong need for improvement.	Chronic instability, active violation, or severe criminogenic deficit.

Assessor Rule: Always ask: "Could I provide one or two concrete illustrative examples from the interview or file as the basis for my rating?"

2. Strength Notation Guidelines

Each of the eight General Risk/Need subcomponents requires the assessor to judge whether the area qualifies as an Area of Strength.

- Subcomponent Focus: Strengths apply to the subcomponent as a whole, never to isolated individual items.
- Protective Function: A strength indicates positive prosocial functioning that actively buffers or protects against future criminal behavior.
- Disqualification Rule: If any item within a subcomponent indicates a significant deficit (e.g. scored 0 or 1 on a 0–3 rating item, or marked Yes on an elevated risk item), that subcomponent cannot be marked as a Strength.

6. Criminogenic Thinking Patterns & Cognitive Distortions

Turn90 cognitive-behavioral curriculum focuses on recognizing and restructuring these core thinking errors:

Thinking Error	Description & Criminogenic Mechanism	Typical Participant Verbalizations	Prosocial Turn90 Replacement
Mollification / Rationalization	Making excuses, minimizing harm, blaming the victim or society.	"What I did isn't as bad as what other people do." / "I wasn't hurting anybody."	Direct personal accountability; recognizing that rules protect everyone.
Cut-Off	Giving up at the first obstacle; impulsive disregard for consequences.	"Screw it, whatever happens, happens." / "I don't care anymore."	Pause and breathe (STAC method); evaluating long-term freedom over short-term relief.
Sentimentality	Believing one good deed offsets chronic rule-breaking.	"I do a lot for my community, so my charges don't define me."	Consistency in daily behavior; character is shown by everyday reliability.
Super-Optimism	Believing one can engage in crime without ever getting caught.	"I'm too smart to get caught this time." / "Lightning won't strike twice."	Reality testing; recognizing that criminal behavior always ends in prison or death.
Cognitive Indolence	Lazy thinking; taking the easiest path; avoiding sustained mental effort.	"I'll figure it out later." / "That's too much paperwork."	Discipline and persistence; breaking large tasks into manageable action steps.
Power Orientation	Equating aggression and intimidation with respect and safety.	"In my neighborhood, if you don't strike first, you're food."	Real strength is de-escalation, emotional control, and providing for family.
